INSTRUCTIONS.

SIR:

There has been forwarded to you a book for the purpose of making and keeping a complete register of the force at your office.

The name of every person employed, and paid from any fund for services in connection with your office, except persons borne upon the rolls of the Railway Mail Service, must be entered on this register.

The names of all persons temporarily employed, no matter for how short a time, the names of the non-classified and excepted appointees, as well as of those in the non-excepted classified force, and of persons selected from certification for non-excepted classified positions who decline, fail to report, or fail to qualify, must be entered, the proper notes being made in the different columns.

All changes in the status of an employé affecting his salary or grade, or both, must be noted in the appropriate columns.

All appointees from civil service examination and certification will be given probational appointments upon their entry into the service. At the end of the six months probational period they must either receive absolute appointments, if their probation has been satisfactory, or be notified that they will not be continued in the service, in the event that such probation has not been satisfactory, the proper report being made to this Department.

The names of all persons transferred to your office must be entered in the first column, the dates being shown in the column of absolute appointments, and in the intermediate columns should be written "By transfer from ....."

The dates of all transfers from your office should be entered in the "Transferred" column of "Separations from the service," and in the column of "Remarks" should be written "By transfer to ....." In either case the name of the office from or to which transfer is made should be specified, or whether it is from or to the Railway Mail Service or the Post-Office Department.

It is presumed that it may be difficult to make a list of the present force, showing all changes in the status of each person since the date of original appointment, in the cases of employés appointed before the receipt of this book; you need, therefore, do no more than enter the name, age, position to which originally appointed, whether non-excepted, excepted, or unclassified, and, in the first column of "promoted or reduced," the position at present occupied and the date of appointment, promotion, or reduction thereto. In the cases of persons hereafter appointed a complete record must be made. The date of original appointment of a person appointed through civil service examination and certification is the date of the probational appointment.

When the "Promoted or reduced" columns are filled new entries should be made with references in the "Remarks" columns to the folio numbers where they are to be found.

Very respectfully,

S. M. Whitfield

First Assistant Postmaster General.
